Self-Monitoring and Performance Feedback: An Evidence-Based Intervention

Abigail Graffenius

PYC 6210: Assessment and Intervention II

April 16, 2026

Incorporating Evidence

- When including evidence, you can quote, summarize, or paraphrase your sources
- For short quotations (four or fewer lines of prose), enclose your quote in double quotation marks within your paragraph
- For long quotations (forty or more words), you must use block quotations
 - ⇒ Include the quote in a free-standing block of text with no quotation marks
 - ⇒ Maintain double-spacing, and use a 0.5-inch indentation for the whole quote
- Whether you are directly quoting, summarizing, or paraphrasing, you must include a citation

In-Text Citations

- Citations refer your reader to the sources you used as evidence for your claims
- In-text citations will include the author's last name and year of publication
 - When a source is used more than once in the same paragraph, cite the page number.

Author and year

Smith et al. (2022) describes the procedures of creating a self-monitoring and performance feedback intervention. This process can vary slightly and be tailored to each students' individual needs. Students begin by self-assessing, meaning they will identify a problem behavior. In observable terms, students will select and define their performance goals

(35). Next, the students will self-monitor their behavior by either self-prompting or being prompted to self-observe. In this phase, the student will reflect on their own performance and

Reference Page and In-Text Citations

The Reference page is at the end of an CMOS-style paper that shows all the sources you used in your essay. It gives full publication details for each source so readers can locate the original material. Every source that appears in the Reference page must also be cited in the paper using in-text citations, and vice versa.

Reference Page Formatting

- All sources are listed in alphabetical order
- List up to 3 authors in the reference page before "et al."
- No extra spacing between entries

References centered at the top of the page
